

ABSTRACT

Promoter sequences and their essential regions are identified which provide for male tissue-preferred expression. The nucleotide sequences are useful in mediating male fertility in plants.